2017 Story

IN 2017 ethical adventures started tours in late January. This was a huge gamble given our small size and low exposure however it was time to take the plunge. It was also a key goal since the beginning to offer experiences throughout the year giving people the chance to learn and feel the full gambit of seasons and features up here.

All in all it was a success. Nature put on a show and intrepid travelers came and great memories were created..

Feedback via Trip Advisor was great (310/315 5 Star reviews thus far).

We offered 4 tours plus private charter experiences which covered:

Litchfield National Park

Kakadu

Mary River

Fogg Dam

Darwin

Coroborree Billabong

We ran over 140 tour days and gave out about 1000 muffins !

All images in this book were taken by ethical adventures or guests during the experiences. We provide them through this book under the implied agreement that they not be used for commercial purposes. When used outside of this please reference appropriately.

We also got a bit more hands on with the issues up here (in particuly the ANTI fracking movement), helped out a bunch of charities and generally increased our presence in the environmental and social action scene.

Thrown in amongst all that of course is watching Spencer get older (almost 2 now) and the date of arrival of our second baby getting closer (Feb 2018).

So 2017 was a BIG year.

To be fair we would not have been able to do what we did without on-ground support from Marie (Trace's mum) and the occasional dinner with the neighbours. There is also the generous people who are donating their time helping us try to develop our marketing material and online presence (Reza & Namitha) who also deserve a mention.

Moving forward sees us offering a few Kakadu 2 day tours (Colours of Kakadu) throughout the year focusing on indigenous culture and people as well as a couple of Wet Season Packages to capture the 'Best in the Wet' and did I mention the second baby ...?

Yep, 2018 is going to be an interesting year ... fingers crossed we will continue to get great people coming our way and the dream of doing something you love can stay our reality.

So for now thank you to all of you who joined us this year. Stay in touch (Facebook, Instagram), be well and love life.
